School.

School, a place where no child wants to go. Many of us may have atleast cried once for ignoring going to school. But, as we spend time in school we make new friends interact with them and teachers which make us habitual of that environment.

The waking up early during the school days is the most annoying thing a child faces specially during winter, when our blankets don't let us get up from our bed as if it says, "oh! why are you waking up, just go to sleep there is a lot of time to wake up". Then mummy enters and says, "wake up fast, your bus will arrive at any moment", and then finally we come out of our room.

Most of the children ~~for~~ feels sleepy during the first lecture and have no idea what the teacher is telling about.

During the break don't know from where but every single child is bully charged as if they were waiting for this time only. The sharing of tiffins is the best part of break where we get many variety of dishes to eat.

There is always a child in a class who always checks everyone's tiffins and eats from everybody's tiffin.

When ever school timing is about to end don't know why the time get's slower and slower as if it is checking our patience. When finally school ends, children runs as if the bulls running out of the cage.

Every child at least once thinks that when will I pass out from this school but, after passing out everybody misses their school the most. School is the place of our childhood memories which are the sweetest of all. So, live this time with full of joy and happiness.
