* Experience *

Does experience matter? There are many things which we learn by our experience. Many people learn from others experience but, we never forget our experiences. A wise person always try to make out something positive from his/her experience.

Let's see a story based on this subject. This story is of a boy named Rahul. Rahul was very mischievous boy and always used to taunt on teachers. There was a teacher named Rohan sir, he used to teach maths. While Rahul was in 10th std, he once taunted about Rohan sir in ongoing lecture. Rohan sir ~~recognised~~ recognised, that was Rahul. He didn't said anything to him directly. Sir just smiled and said, "Do you think its that easy to stand infront of so many students and teach? Who so ever want's to speak can come here infront and speak to me. Let's have one on one conversation. You all will not understand this right now that, how it feels when so many eyes are watching you while teaching."

When the lecture ended Rohan sir said, "Everyone note my phone number, whenever you feel that you are having any doubt regarding my subject, you can contact me." By this indirectly sir was trying to tell Rahul that when ever you will experience the same then share it with me.

Next day english teacher, Ram sir told everyone to explain a chapter in brief. When it was Rahul's turn everybody started laughing and taunting on him. He felt very bad but some how he explained what he was expected to. During lunch break he called Rohan sir and requested Rohan sir to be where he was because Rahul wanted to meet him.

When Rahul reached there, his eyes were full of tears as if pleading for apology. Rohan sir said, "Don't cry, I was just try to tell you that you should respect your teachers as they are giving you knowledge."

So, there are many things which we understand only when we experience it. So be happy & learn something from your experiences weather they are good or bad.

Thank You.
